Placerville Ski Club members have received from the Tahoe Ski Club an invitation to be present at their annual fun-fest, called a "ski daddle," to be held Saturday night, November 8 at Tahoe City. The invitation was received by officers of the Placerville Club during the weekend and since there probably will not be a meeting of the club before the date of the "ski daddle," word of the invitation is being circulated through the press and by word of mouth among the membership.

Officers said that several members of the Placerville Club have indicated an interest in the "ski daddle" and that Placerville probably will be represented at Tahoe City that night.

VAN VLECK AND BASSI CATTLE RANGE, NEAR TELLS PEAK, REFUGE OF AIRMEN

Plane Smashed And Scattered Over Wide Area; Circumstances Basis For Some Hope That Ninth Man Of Crew May Have Escaped From Ship

Eight men escaped alive and the pilot is listed as missing following the crash of a United States Army B-17-E bombing plane Sunday noon on the Orin Van Vleck cattle range in the Tells Peak vicinity, approximately fifty-five miles east of Georgetown.

Wreckage of the plane, scattered over a wide area, was found early Monday morning by rescue crews organized by Eldorado National Forest. There was no evidence of fire and no trace of the missing pilot.

Hope that he escaped safely from the plane arises from this circumstance, and the further fact that Sunday evening, members of the rescue party found a parachute hanging on a fence post.

None of the eight men who are accounted for remembered hanging his parachute over a fence post, and this coupled with the failure to find a trace of the pilot near the wreckage thus far leads to a hope that he, too, may have parachuted.

Casualty in the crash as reported from Georgetown Ranger Station are:

Second Lieut. J. R. Mode, co-pilot, of Fort Worth, Texas, a broken leg;

Private First-Class Harold Salisbury, of Bangor, Me., broken leg;

Private Robert Moseley, of Columbus, Neb., head injury indicated by swelling; extent of injury undetermined.

Others in the crew included: Lieut. L. M. Walker, no home address, pilot; listed as missing;

Staff Sergeant Eugene M. Clemens, of Chamberlain, South Dakota;

Corporal Walter B. Glanz, no home address;

Private First Class Fred E. Pekuri, Portland, Ore.;

Private Sterling Isom, Hurricane, Utah;

Private Alden Stookey, of Corning, California.

Shortly before twelve o'clock Monday, the rescue party, led by Rangers Frank McCaslin, of Georgetown, and M. D. Morris, of Pacific, found the main portion of the plane fuselage and reported to the forest headquarters there was no trace of the missing pilot in the fuselage or vicinity.

As of noon Monday, Lieut. Walker was missing. Private Stookey had gone to the northern part of the state with relatives; and Corporal Isom was believed to have reported to the Army air base at Sacramento.

Lieut. Mode and Sgt. Clemens were enroute to Placerville Sanatorium from Georgetown Ranger Station in the care of Dr. A. A. McKinnon; Privates Moseley and Pekuri were resting at the Sanatorium;

Private Salisbury was being brought out, by trail crew to an Army ambulance at the Van Vleck range residence; and Corporal Glanz was standing by at the Van Vleck range residence to assist in the operation of Forest Service short-wave radio equipment.

The plane, one of the newer type of bombing planes, was enroute from Salt Lake City to Sacramento and left Reno at eleven o'clock Sunday morning, being due at Sacramento Army Air Base at 12:40 o'clock Sunday afternoon.

According to members of the crew, the ship was flying at an altitude of "ten or twelve thousand feet" in a snow storm and was being battered by strong winds.

A portion of the tail of the ship was blown off, opening up the rear of the fuselage and resulting in a suction which drew two men out of the plane. They opened their parachutes and made a safe descent.

Six others of the crew of nine are known to have jumped as the plane gave evidence of breaking up.

From noon until about six o'clock,

JOSEPHUS DANIELS RESIGNS AS U. S. AMBASSADOR TO MEXICO

WASHINGTON, (AP)—President Roosevelt has accepted the resignation of Josephus Daniels as U. S. Ambassador to Mexico. The President expressed regret and reluctance in accepting it. He added that the resignation will become effective after Daniels, now in this country, returns to Mexico City to bid good-bye to Mexican governmental officials with whom he has worked.

County Boy Scouts Share In Council's Scoutorama

All Boy Scouts units of the county shared in the Golden Empire Council's Scoutorama, staged Saturday night at the Sacramento Memorial auditorium and which, despite rain that evening, attracted an attendance of 2,500 persons.

Several of the troops presented candidates for the tenderfoot investiture ceremony in which Max Tong, of Georgetown, led the entire group in repeating the obligations of the tenderfoot rank.

In addition to Tong, tenderfoot of the Georgetown troop are John Sanders and Harold Scheave; of Troop 57, Robert Hocking and Jack Hocking; and of Troop 86, Donald Mathis, Mason Lumsden and Jack Lumsden.

The county shared actively in arrangements for the Scoutorama, which depicted something of the history of the Scouting in America, with Charles W. Doe, of Diamond Springs, in charge of the pioneering scene, and Don Hook, of Camino, in charge of the camping scene.

SENATE DEBATE ON NEUTRALITY IN 17TH DAY

South Dakotan Declares Germany Is Actual Rather Than Potential Enemy

WASHINGTON, (AP)—Sen. Chas. Gurney, R., S. D., declaring that Germany has become an actual rather than potential enemy of the United States, urged the senate today to repeal the entire neutrality act. He contended it has not been prolonged but helped start the war.

Gurney, opening the seventh day's senate debate on the administration bill to authorize arming of merchant ships and sending them into combat zones and belligerent ports, said that isolationism is the greatest present impediment to national defense.

"He classified 'labor leaders who put personal power above production' as isolationists and noted that enough man-hours have been wasted to have built 150 submarines.

Diplomats described the present strained situation between United States and Germany as being without precedent in recent international history but foresaw no immediate break in diplomatic relations.

Two questions most frequently asked here are: "When will Germany and the U. S. sever diplomatic relations?"

"When, if ever, will they declare war?"

No official answer has been given to either.

The latest remark on the subject was made by President Roosevelt last week when he said he did not see any change impending between Germany and the United States as a result of the sinking of the destroyer Reuben James.

But diplomats offer privately a wide range of answers. Some maintain that a "state of war" already exists, based on the fact that the navies of both powers apparently are carrying out a policy of "shoot on sight."

Others, when asked whether and when they think war will be declared, answer: "Do you mean officially?"

The consensus here was that neither the Reuben James sinking nor the attack on the destroyer Kearny which preceded it would force a diplomatic rupture. Some 77 men still are missing from the Reuben James and 11 died on the Kearny.

The same reaction followed the German statement, issued from Adolf Hitler's headquarters, charging the United States with firing the first shot in the Atlantic.

COAST GUARD NOW IN NAVY

Transfer Is Effective "Until Further Orders," Pres. Roosevelt Declares

WASHINGTON, (AP)—President Roosevelt's transfer of the Coast Guard from the treasury department to the Navy was viewed today as a move to create an integrated coastal protection force and to strengthen the Navy in the undeclared North Atlantic war.

Mr. Roosevelt directed the transfer last night in an executive order issued at his Hyde Park, N. Y., home. He had ordered sea-going Coast Guard units transferred to the Navy several months ago; the new order shifted the entire service.

Coast guard officials said the order meant that henceforth all operations of the guard would be under control of the Navy, including harbor patrol and control authority and the Coast Guard's recently-organized auxiliary and shore life-saving stations.

Mr. Roosevelt's order directed "that the Coast Guard shall from this date, until further orders, operate as a part of the Navy, subject to the orders of the Secretary of the Navy."

A Coast Guard spokesman said the service's personnel includes about 20,000 enlisted men and 1,700 commissioned and warrant officers, as well as 290 ships. The ship figure, however, did not include small boats—picket boats and other small craft used only inshore. The number of such small craft runs well into the hundreds, inasmuch as a large number of privately-owned craft of that type, registered as Coast Guard reserves, have been brought into active duty recently.

CHARLES S. BLOOMQUIST FOUND DEAD SUNDAY AT PILOT HILL

Charles S. Bloomquist, 84, for many years resident at Pilot Hill, was found dead Sunday morning in his bed in his quarters at the J. F. Ryman ranch, where he had lived many years.

Mr. Bloomquist had not been well lately and when he failed to put in appearance by mid-morning on Sunday, inquiry was made for him resulting in the discovery of the body. He had, apparently, passed away during the night, Coroner A. J. Orelli reports.

Mr. Bloomquist was a native of Sweden.

Plans are being made for funeral services on Wednesday morning at ten-thirty o'clock at Memory Chapel. Interment will be at Middletown cemetery.

A suit for divorce was filed on Saturday in Superior Court in behalf of Everett Delory and Against Mary Estella Delory, alleging cruelty. The complaint states the pair wed April 10, 1941, and separated in July.

GERMANS HURL NEW DRIVE AT MOSCOW

Nazis Press Forward In Crimea; British Sending Air Forces To Archangel

War in brief:

By UNITED PRESS

BERLIN—German sweep through the Crimea to within 30 air miles of Sevastopol and eastward against Kerch claimed by the high command, which reports Russian defenses broken. City of Kursk taken on central front.

KUNBYSHIEV—Big German attack on Moscow front beginning as Russian reserves rush to battlefield. Gravest situation admitted in Crimea, but Red army fighting in the mountains before Sevastopol and Kerch.

LONDON—R. A. F. hammers at 23 German ships in North Sea; bombs Kiel and European coast; strikes at Naples and Palermo in Italy.

STOCKHOLM—British aerial forces reported arriving at Archangel in large numbers to aid Red army.

By UNITED PRESS

ISTANBUL—Report heavy losses force withdrawal of most of Hungarian and Rumanian armies from eastern front.

The Red army was reported to be smashing into German panzer columns massed in the Kalinin and Tula sectors for a new offensive on the frozen front before Moscow today and fighting in formidable mountain positions against an Axis sweep across the strategic Crimea peninsula.

On the Crimean front, the Germans reported they had defeated the Russians with big losses and were driving toward the naval base of Sevastopol and the narrow Kerch strait leading to the Caucasus front, where Turkish dispatches said they would be opposed by a British middle east army using American war materials.

Radio Moscow, however, said that Russian forces had been massed in the mountains to defend both Sevastopol and Kerch and that big guns were hammering the Nazi's tank columns.

On the Moscow front freezing weather appeared to have partly released the Germans from a sea of mud and heavy fighting was reported in the Tula and Kalinin sectors, where the Red army claimed an initial advantage.

In the Crimea, the Germans reported they had "broken" the Russian defenses on the entire northern, northeastern and central sectors, sweeping to the Yaila mountains within 30 air miles of Sevastopol, which may be defended for some time but which already has been made almost useless as a naval base because of the heavy Nazi bomber attacks.

Hitler's high command said that 53,175 prisoners had been taken in the Crimea and that 230 tanks and 218 guns had been captured or destroyed, while the remainder of the Russian army of some 500,000 was described as "beaten" or attempting to evacuate by sea under furious aerial attack.

Twenty-four Russian transports were reported hit by German bombers, including 10 ships of 38,000 tons which were said to have been sunk.

Weekend visitors at the Shepard ranch at Fruit Ridge included Miss Lorraine Westrup, Miss Freda Hefel, Vernon Mountain, Julian Lobstein, Mrs. Mabel Lovell and Lloyd Burkholder, all of San Francisco.

Miss Eleanor Tagmeier was a weekend visitor from Vallejo.

Mrs. Marion Ellis was at Stockton Saturday and Sunday attending the annual homecoming at the College of Pacific, of which she is a graduate.

CHAPTER XXXV

THE long journey to Addis Ababa seemed interminable. They went by commercial plane from Paris to Port Said, and by chartered plane from there on, but the fastest speed possible was not fast enough for Peggy. Though Mr. Greer had pulled strings to expedite the trip, there were inevitable delays that were very trying.

They had, of course, notified Paul's commanding officer that they were coming, and they had heard that Paul had reached the hospital safely but, aside from that, they had no further information.

When they at last arrived at the Ethiopian capital, they were met at the airport by a fellow officer of Paul's.

"How is he?" Peggy asked at once.

The young officer hesitated, his face grave.

"Please tell me the truth," Peggy begged.

"Signorina," he told her, "I cannot deny that his condition is very critical. The many days he went without adequate medical attention did him great damage and, since he was brought to the hospital, he has not responded to treatment as well as had been hoped. The doctors are doing their best for him, but I would be giving you false hope if I did not tell you that they are none too optimistic."

Peggy bit her lip to fight back tears.

WHEN they reached the hospital, they had a brief consultation with the doctor in charge of the case, and then it was agreed that Peggy alone should see Paul first.

He has been anxiously awaiting you," the doctor told her. "I am hoping that your arrival will be beneficial."

A nurse conducted her to Paul's door, then left her.

Paul had been told that she had arrived and, as she stepped into the room, his eyes were turned expectantly toward her. She halted just inside the door, shocked by his appearance. Was this gaunt wreck of a man—this pale, thin ghost—was this her gay, laughing Paul, who had been so bronzed and vigorous when last she had seen him? Only the light that came into his dark eyes at sight of her was like the Paul she knew.

Feebly, he raised one arm and stretched it out to her. "Peggy—"

"Paul! Paul! . . . Oh, my darling!" She flew across the room to him.

"Thank you, carissima mia," he whispered, when she had kissed him, "for coming such a long way . . . to give me . . . a last look at you . . ."

Last look? Her heart stood still. "Hush, darling," she gently reproached. "You mustn't say things like that. The doctor says you're doing splendidly—you're going to be well again in no time. And then—you'll be coming home for the wedding. You should see all the preparations Granny has made. . . .

He slowly shook his head, a sad smile curving his lips.

"No, sweetheart . . . there will be no wedding . . . for you and me . . . It's the end . . . I know . . . I can tell." His voice died away.

"Oh, don't . . ." Peggy choked. "Don't say that—don't think it!"

She sank down on a chair beside the bed and, clasping his hand, laid her cheek against it.

"DON'T be distressed, cara mia," he murmured. He paused then heaved a deep sigh. "It's all for the best. You—you can go back now . . . to your Jimmie . . ."

She sat up, startled. "Paul—"

"You love him . . . I know . . ."

he went on. She started to protest, but he hushed her. "Yes . . . I know. I've known ever since he came to see you—just before I came away . . ."

"No—no, Paul!"

Wearily he closed his eyes. "I know it . . . but I couldn't give you up . . . only now . . . now . . . fate has intervened . . . and I know it's . . . just as well . . ."

He groped for her hand and held it tightly. "Thank you, my darling, for all the happiness you have given me, but . . . I know now it was borrowed happiness . . . It—it never really belonged to me . . . Your heart was his . . . from the beginning . . ."

"Paul—please—please!" Peggy buried her face in the bed covers and gave way to tears. "You're talking this way only because you're ill. You mustn't think that! I love you . . . I love you!"

"Yes," he whispered, "you do—but not as you once loved him. Not as you could love him again."

He put his hand under her chin and made her look up at him, her eyes brimming.

"Don't weep, little Peggy . . . Do you remember, I told you that eyes so lovely should never know tears? Don't feel badly . . . we cannot help what is in our hearts. Those things just happen . . . and can't be changed." He sighed. "I thought before . . . that I couldn't bear it . . . if I should lose you . . . couldn't bear to give you up to another. But when one is . . . so close . . . to the end . . . things don't seem to matter so much . . ."

He was speaking with increasing difficulty, struggling for breath.

"So when . . . you go away from here . . . when it is all over . . . don't grieve for me . . . I want you to be happy . . . That's . . . all . . . that matters . . ."

Peggy had buried her face again, weeping copiously, too overcome by emotion to speak. It was dreadful for him to be talking like this! She couldn't stand it!

"Kiss me . . . carissima mia . . ."

she heard him whisper.

She put her arms about him . . . clung to him . . . kissed him with all the ardor that was in her.

"Oh, Paul . . . Paul . . ." was all she could say.

A little later, he lapsed into unconsciousness.

The doctor came, examined him, then gravely shook his head. "He's dying . . ."

(To be concluded.)

DIARY of a BEAUTY AUTHORITY by Helena Rubinstein

EDITOR'S NOTE:—This is the first of a series of articles by the famous beauty authority, Helena Rubinstein, which this paper will present to you every week as a special feature.

NEW YORK—No one has ever decided which is more important to a woman's appearance—her face or her figure—and when you come right down to it, I guess both are equally important. Certainly no woman would ever be considered a beauty—even with the loveliest face and complexion—if she were too fat. All the great beauties of history have been slender, the prettiest clothes are designed for the slender women—and, as a matter of fact, a slim figure is important today, not only for looks, but for vitality, too.

Mrs. Hamilton came into my private consultation room yesterday looking twenty pounds heavier than when I last saw her. "Look at me," she wailed. "Too many dinner parties and charity luncheons. You know the desserts they serve. How am I ever going to return to a size 14?"

I prescribed for Mrs. Hamilton a scientific program consisting of my Seventeen Day Diet and exercise and, if she follows it faithfully, she will be a slyph in a few weeks. If women would only realize the importance of "food for beauty," there would never be any overweight, listless women.

Proper food brings slenderness, health and the sparkle in the eyes and spring in the step that means real beauty. And actually, the food for beauty diet is so simple, and so easy to follow at home. It can be summed up as: eat half of your daily food in the form of raw fresh fruits and vegetables. After that, eat what you want, provided what you want does not include gravies, whipped cream, candies and pastries. Here is a typical food for beauty diet menu for one day, such as I recommended to Mrs. Hamilton:

Breakfast:—½ grapefruit, black coffee.

Lunch—fresh fruit salad (lemon juice instead of dressing), 1 tablespoon cottage cheese, 1 rye crisp.

Dinner—hearts of lettuce, 2 lamb chops, broiled; 1 portion julienne carrots, 1 portion string beans, ½ grapefruit.

This seven-day diet, combined with exercise, would show a difference of 4 to 7 pounds on the scales.

If you would like to receive Madame Rubenstein's complete Seven Day Diet, you can do so by addressing your request to Helena Rubenstein, in care of this paper. Questions regarding your skin problems will also be answered personally by Madame Rubenstein.

Next week: "Spot reducing and living exercises."

Fame as Cook In Fine Gravies

By BETSY NEWMAN

DON'T serve pale, pasty-looking gravy with your meat roast, whether you pot roast or oven roast it. The rest of your meal may be mediocre, but if your gravy is a rich brown and properly seasoned, you'll win a reputation as a good cook. Browning the meat well does the trick.

Today's Menu
 Pot Roast of Beef
 Onions, Carrots, Turnips
 Boiled or Mashed Potatoes
 Cabbage, Green Pepper and Apple Salad
 Chocolate Loaf Cake Coffee

Pot Roast of Beef
 4 lbs. top sirloin 1 qt. boiling of beef water
 8 tbsps. drippings or other fat
 Onions, carrots and turnips
 2 tbsps. flour

Seasoning
 Have meat cut in thick, compact pieces; if necessary, tie or skewer to keep its shape. Melt drippings in heavy saucepan and brown meat well on all sides; pour boiling water over it and cover closely. Simmer gently for 2 hours, then season with salt and pepper and add vegetables which have been scraped or peeled as needed, and cut into pieces. Cook until vegetables are tender, then remove meat and vegetables and thicken gravy with flour mixed with a little cold water.

CALIFORNIA FARM PARADE

By United Press

Defense officials in Washington have received a number of letters indicating that some rural merchants misunderstand the priorities system. The letters from farmers say they can't buy certain farm equipment unless they obtain individual priority ratings.

Washington officials emphasize that farmers themselves do not have to obtain any special rating. The priority ratings are issued to the equipment manufacturers, and dealers are permitted to sell to the farmers without discrimination.

From the farm standpoint, the most important metals are iron and steel, aluminum, copper, nickel, tin and zinc. There might not be enough steel to meet the full demands of even the essential industries next year. The same is true of copper. The zinc shortage is forcing farm machinery and equipment manufacturers to use painted steel instead of galvanized steel. Nickel, another scarce metal, is used to give strength to steel, but now manufacturers are using chromium instead. They also are trying to substitute chromium instead. They also are trying to substitute chrome iron for nickel-bearing steel in such things as milking machines.

But so far, there has been no curtailment in the output of milk. Latest figures show a five per cent increase in daily production during September, and during the first nine months of the year. Estimated stocks of dairy products on October first were the heaviest on record.

There's also encouraging news for sheep and lamb growers.

Although prices this year were substantially higher than a year ago, the agriculture department is predicting that prices in 1942 will be even better. And the same goes for wool.

RACKET AMONG VOCATIONAL TRAINING SCHOOLS IS REVEALED

SACRAMENTO—State Selective Service headquarters today warned Californians not to be misled by solicitors of vocational training schools claiming they will gain deferment by enrolling in such schools.

It has come to the attention of state officials that some schools are promising registrants that by enrolling they will be deferred from selective service training.

It was explained that only local boards can grant deferment, and in each case they study the background of the student, his former employment, his mechanical proficiency, the length of time spent in the school, and the quality of instructions given.

There is a shortage of skilled workmen in many fields, but not all individuals engaged in such work can be assured of deferment because of the selective service act's prohibiting blanket deferments.

The headquarters announced that anyone who is led to believe deferments will be granted to them if they register in a training school should report the matter to their local board at once, as several instances have occurred in the state and are now under investigation by the F. B. I.

MAIN COURSE DISHES from your EMERGENCY SHELF

No trouble to whisk together and many's the time they save the day!

Dorothy Greig

Baked Salmon Roll with Mushroom Sauce is put together from emergency shelf supplies.

A FRIEND of mine keeps menus for a quick luncheon or supper and several simple dinners pasted on the inside of her kitchen cabinet door. These meals can be put together from the canned soups, canned meats and fish, prepared biscuit and cake mixes and canned fruits on her shelf.

She says her little plan has, on occasion, saved her no end of trouble—and it does seem to make sense. And there's really almost no limit to the dishes that can be whisked together from canned and packaged foods. This baked salmon roll with mushroom sauce is a good example. The biscuit, made from biscuit mix, is light and delicate. Canned salmon is used for filling, and condensed cream of mushroom soup is the base for the delicious sauce:

Baked Salmon Roll with Mushroom Sauce

2 cups prepared biscuit mix
1/2 cup milk
1 can (16 oz.) salmon
1/2 teaspoon salt
Pinch of pepper

Stir milk into biscuit mix until a smooth but not sticky dough is formed. Turn out on floured board and roll over 2 to 3 times. Roll out dough in a piece about 8x12 inches. Combine flaked salmon, lemon juice and seasonings. Spread this over the biscuit dough and roll loosely, lengthwise. If rolled too tightly the roll will split open on the top when baking. Place in a long pan or on a baking sheet and bake in a moderately hot oven 375° F., about 30-40 minutes. Glazed baked onions are good with this.

Serves 6.
Mushroom Sauce
1 can condensed cream of mushroom soup
1/2 cup milk
1/2 teaspoon grated lemon rind

Stir the milk into the cream of mushroom soup. Heat, add grated lemon rind and continue heating 3-4 minutes. Serve over the Baked Salmon Roll.

Corned Beef Hash with Spicy Tomato Sauce

1 can (12 oz.) corned beef, chopped
1 1/2 pounds potatoes
1/4 cup onions, finely chopped
4 tablespoons butter or shortening
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon pepper

Select potatoes about the same size and cook with the skins on in boiling, salted water 25-35 minutes or until tender. When cool, peel and cut or chop the potatoes in small dice (about 3/16 inch square). Chop the corned beef or put it through the food chopper using the medium blade. Cook the chopped onions with the butter or shortening until soft, but not browned; then mix the potatoes, chopped corned beef, onions, salt and pepper together. Shape into individual oblong portions and brown on both sides in a hot, greased pan.

Serves 7.

Spicy Tomato Sauce

1 can condensed tomato soup
2 tablespoons sugar
2 tablespoons vinegar
8 cloves
1 stick cinnamon (about 2 inches long)

Mix together and simmer for about 5 minutes to blend the flavor. Strain out cloves and stick cinnamon. Serve hot with the Pan-browned Corned Beef Hash.

MAKING AMERICA STRONG

BOTH DEFENSE PRODUCTION AND WORKERS' HEALTH BENEFIT FROM "ROLLING KITCHENS"

MANUFACTURERS OPERATE FLEETS OF MOBILE CAFETERIAS ON NON-PROFIT BASIS, SERVING BEST QUALITY, NOURISHING FOOD TO WORKERS

ON THE JOB

NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF MANUFACTURERS

This is one of a series of illustrated articles designed to inform the public of the progress being made by American industry in providing the weapons for national defense. The facts have been gathered in surveys of leading defense industries and from other authoritative sources.

The health of its workers is one of industry's prime concerns. Recent surveys have shown the extent to which industrial establishments, both large and small, have gone to insure their employees against accident and illnesses.

A recent trend in this same direction is the establishment in numerous defense plants of mobile kitchens that provide nourishing food to employees at various times of the day. Milk and other refreshments are available to the employees to help them over the customary "tired" periods of the day. These refreshments are served free in some plants; served at cost in others.

Full meals at noon may also be had. Workers who prefer the clean and carefully selected food of the mobile cafeteria to the hustle and bustle of the outside restaurants are thus taken care of. Especial care is used in the preparation of these plant meals to insure that the employee gets food that is not only good and plentiful but also well-balanced in terms of vitamins.

The employees in plants with this service have expressed their approval of the idea. Most of them save money in the cost of meals, but more important they realize the need for good food that is nourishing, cleanly cooked, and is cleanly served.

There is still another good aspect of such plans. One company which has installed a fleet of these half-ton food units—loaded, each one will serve 200—is now able to feed its 12,000 defense workers in the period between 11:30 and 1 p. m.

from the movie, "One Night of Love" in which she sang the role of Cio-Cio-San in "Madame Butterfly," with Tullio Carminati in the role of the conductor.

Tickets for her performance on November 10th are on sale now at the Ware-Hazleton box office in Weinstock-Lubin's.

GRACE MOORE SINGS AT SACRAMENTO NOV. 10 IN NEXT OFFERING OF CAPITAL CITY'S MUSIC SERIES

Grace Moore, beautiful blond American leading soprano of the Metropolitan Opera Company, will be heard November 10th in the second event of the Sacramento Music Series "Greater Series" for the year. Miss Moore, a world-wide favorite of kings and presidents, as well as a star of radio, concert, motion pictures and opera, has planned a program of songs and operatic arias for which she is famous.

Exclusively American trained, Miss Moore's first conquest was the little town of Jellico, Tennessee, where she was born. Here, on Sundays, like the angelic host, she lent her voice to the salvation of hesitant singers and the sanctification of the saved.

But beyond the Cumberland mountains lay the bigger world of accomplishments. And so, on to Washington, the nation's capital, went the intrepid Miss Moore. It was not long before she had a real concert date, in which she shared the program with Giovanni Martinelli of the Metropolitan Opera.

Encouraged by her success, she proceeded to New York, and followed the dull routine of voice study, stage deportment, language, etc., and to provide the cost of these lessons, she sang in musical comedy.

Her first starring vehicle was "Up In The Clouds," which was after all, quite an appropriate setting for a future star. Later, she drew the crowd to Irving Berlin's "Music Box Revue."

A year of study in Europe followed. Returning to America, she made her Metropolitan Opera debut February 7, 1928, in the role of Mimi in "La Boheme." Her re-engagement followed each season, triumph has followed triumph—Mimi, Manon, Juliet, and finally Louise.

Sacramento remembers Grace Moore from a concert here almost ten years ago, and more recently,

in other words

by JOHN CLINTON

My favorite magazine—Reader's Digest—had a honey of a story in it the other day about a motorist who drove into a service station at Laguna Beach and asked for 10 gallons of gas.

Instantly the men in the station sprang to work, wiping the windshield, filling the tires, checking the radiator, and giving him a big sales routine. Boy, stuff was going on. The driver then paid his bill and drove off down the coast.

Shortly he drove back. "Say," he asked, "did any of you fellows put gas in my car?" The boys went into a conference, finally came out of it and admitted it—nobody had!

Well that tickled me a good deal, because it illustrates how the service-tail can wag the purchase-dog! But that's why Union Minute Men are so popular. They, too, will deal out swift service. But they don't forget what you came in for.

Union Minute Men never slow you down, either, with service when you're in a rush. Nor do they try to sell you some special deal just because you have to get gas. They match their service to your need. And what a difference it makes.

And I am fully convinced that the tremendous increase in business at Union Oil stations is due in no small part to the boys in white—the Union Oil Minute Men. So, look, next time—stop at the sign of the big orange and blue 76 and see for yourself!

"...all I know is what I read in the papers"

He was a cowboy—a plain man. But he was a great American because he thought straight.

Let all Americans in THESE times recall how a man of the people became the critic and confidant of princes and presidents. Will Rogers read the newspapers.

Will had a great ability which YOU can have, too, if you'll do as he did. He read FACTS—and the same kind of facts are in the papers today, as they were in his time—the acts of Congress, the fights, the fires, the prices, all the news of the day.

He read OPINIONS also. What this or that man THOUGHT about the facts. He read the urgings and persuasions of others, seeking to make "converts" or "customers" or "members"—the many sincere beliefs and opinions which ALL newspapers worthy of the name MUST print.

Then, armed with the facts and the opinions of the day, Will Rogers did what every man who deserves to be called a free citizen MUST DO. HE MADE UP HIS OWN MIND.

Will Rogers never complained that the papers were unreliable or one-sided. HE found enough good information in them to make himself loved, respected and listened to by almost the whole of America and Europe. How right he could be!

Herr Hitler doesn't believe the people are able to think for themselves. So he throws all but his OWN ideas in the wastebasket. Certain people in America—often they are college professors, government officials or leaders of some "ism" or movement—feel that way also. They aren't content to have their ideas and opinions offered along with the facts and along with the opinions of others.

If such people had their way, America could never have the sixty or seventy million informed, capable voting citizens who, given ALL the facts, ALL the opinions in straight, uncensored NEWS, are able to give us GOVERNMENT BY THE PEOPLE.

80,000 JUGOSLAWS SAID TO BE WAGING WAR ON AXIS TROOPS

LONDON, (UP)—A spokesman for the refugee Yugoslav government reported today that an estimated 80,000 patriots were conducting fierce warfare against the Axis in the Serbian mountains after having killed hundreds of troops and forcing German soldiers to relieve some of the Italian occupation units.

The "second war" against Axis forces in Yugoslavia is being led by former army officers, who have organized a well disciplined force, to strike at Axis supply lines to the Russian front, the spokesman said.

PRESIDENT VIEWS LABOR SITUATION AS BETTER THAN FORMERLY

WASHINGTON, (UP)—President Roosevelt said today that the defense-labor situation has taken a recent turn for the worse but contended that it still is better than at the outset of the rearmament program.

The President spoke at a press conference as the full defense mediation board met with Chairman William H. Davis to pick a "jury" to try the merits of John L. Lewis' demands for a union shop in captive coal mines employing 53,000 men. Lewis wants a union shop for the United Mine Workers of America (U. M. W.), which he heads. Lewis yesterday ordered a 15-day resumption of the mediation board's action of work in the captive mines.

HALLOWE'EN THEFT OF 15 DOZEN EGGS; 2 DOGS POISONED

Among the Halloween incidents which are not listed on the fun side of the ledger is the theft of fifteen dozen eggs from the Clifton feed and fuel company.

According to city police, they are investigating this report of the theft of the eggs Friday night, and the further report that a group of youths were seen in an "egg battle."

Up to Monday, none had been taken into custody.

Two dogs belonging to H. P. Brown were believed poisoned, evidently sometime Friday night. The dogs died under circumstances indicating they probably had been poisoned, and an analysis of the contents of their stomachs is being made.

It was not apparent that this incident was, necessarily, related to Halloween.

Police reported "the usual series of pranks," for Friday evening.

The United States is now practically the only market for Brazilian caruba wax, the Department of Commerce says.

RURAL FIRE LOSS FOR STATE IN YEAR SET AT $3,500,000 IN REPORT ON WORK BY DIVISION OF FORESTRY CREWS

SACRAMENTO, (UP)—One of the worst fire years in the state's history was cut short by rains in most areas of the state but still caused total damage of about three and one half million dollars, more than twice the loss last year, the state division of forestry announced today.

There were 4,735 forest fires from January 1 through September, as compared to 3,735 last year and 4,811 the year before. The number of structural fires were 1,596 this year and 5,320 in 1940, making a total of 6,331 blazes this year as compared to 5,320 the year previous.

The area burned this year was less than half that of the peak year in 1939, particularly in timber, with 1,215 acres this year and 37,237 in 1939. Brush fires were held to 69,227 acres in 1941 and 249,159 in 1939.

The grass fire loss was more nearly equal, with 143,147 in 1941, 51,168 in 1940, and 184,764 in 1939. The total acreage loss amounted to 217,639 in 1941, 141,098 in 1940 and 475,125 for 1939.

The total valley and forest fire loss for 1941 was $3,494,736, of which structural damage by fires originating within structures accounted for 3,244,361. Other categories were quite low, with $3,885 for timber, $64,505 for range, $53,209 for hay and grain, and $128,776 of improvements damaged as the result of forest fires.

The forestry division experienced trouble in finding fire fighters who would work for the low wages previously paid when higher pay was available in defense work. Even when the state did raise the scales, the usual waiting list of applicants did not appear.

It doesn't take long, when you work behind a counter, to find out that when things are advertised they sell better than when they are not.

In other words, advertising means more goods sold and more manufactured.

And that means more jobs in stores and factories.
